Role Description

Oregon School-Based Health Alliance (OSBHA) is a statewide nonprofit organization serving as the collective voice to build a stable, effective, and accessible school-based health care system by developing school-based health centers (SBHCS). Our mission is to center youth through the expansion of school health services that shatter health and education disparities, honor youth identities and voices, and prioritize their wellness and joy. We envision an Oregon in which youth are able to access the comprehensive and culturally responsive healthcare services they need to be empowered, seen, and successful.

The Youth Corps enables OSBHA to continue to place youth in positions that create youth-adult partnerships that are indeed a partnership. The Youth Corps Internship Program creates a space where youth voices can be input from the beginning stages of each OSBHA project. Corps interns build professional development skills such as relationship and team-building, communication and public speaking, goal setting, event planning, and project management that allow them to complete project-related deliverables, listening sessions, and youth events.

The Student Health Advocates (SHA) are a group of 15 young people aged 14-22 from across the state of Oregon. Student Health Advocates work with OSBHA from November to June. Members promote the value of school-based health centers and school health services across Oregon by speaking publicly about the importance of health equity and access, providing youth input on how to improve youth-adult partnership projects, and participate in the planning of OSBHA events like School Health Advocacy Day and OSBHA's yearly conference.

As the Peer Advocate Intern, the purpose is for the Student Health Advocates program to be about youth, for youth, and led by fellow youth. This will be the second year with peers being the facilitators and the goal is to continue the mentorship and community building values of the Student Health Advocates. Youth learn, communicate, and feel more comfortable when the program is supported by people they can relate to.

We strongly encourage all qualified candidates to apply regardless of race, ethnicity, gender identity or expression, sexual orientation, disability, family or parental status, or religious affiliation. OSBHA employees have also developed a set of team values that define how we strive to accomplish our work and interact with each other:

- Well-being: We support self-care and a balanced life by respecting one another's assessment of limits and boundaries and recognize that health and well-being looks different for everyone. We celebrate successes and hold space during challenges.
- Curiosity & Innovation: We have a willingness to question existing systems/processes/structures, push past status quo, and engage in practices that allow for creative ways forward.

- Discomfort: We welcome discomfort around examining our own beliefs and knowledge of oppression and white supremacy in order to allow for growth. As a team and as individuals we will explore and support each other as we work, learn, and evolve.
- Accountability: We accept responsibility for our actions, follow-through with commitments, ask for help or propose revised plans when needed, and act with transparency and clarity.
- Integrity: We are honest and authentic with self and others, true to our convictions, and our actions match our words.
- Trust: We commit to building a culture where we can trust in each other's abilities and intentions, and be vulnerable enough to give and receive honest feedback.
- Collaboration: We work together towards our individual and collective goals and support each other by offering knowledge and skills, and flexing work flows and responsibilities as feasible.
